

Monologue on ARTS and MEDIA

You are going to give a talk about ARTS and MEDIA.	The text of the monologue	Vocabulary, Grammar Structures, Linking Words and Phrases
Step 1. Introduction 1. Start with a hook sentence that will attract the listener's attention (a quote, a proverb, etc.). 2. Lead your speech steadily to the main part of your talk. 3. The introduction may consist of 3-6 sentences.	Under modern conditions, art and media are powerful tools that shape the way we see the world. To begin with , they influence not only our emotions but also our opinions, creating trends and cultural movements. Every film, book, or TV programme can inspire us, teach us, or make us question what we believe in. As a matter of fact , we live in a multi-media age , where everyone has access to limitless creativity. Understanding how media and the arts interact helps us appreciate both beauty and meaning in human expression.
Step 2. Types of Media 2.1. What is media ? What are the different types of media? Which types of media do you use for different purposes (finding out about news, entertainment, education, research, etc.)? 2.2. What type of books and films do you like? Tell about your favourite film, book or TV series. Talk about the plot, the main characters and describe your favourite scene/episode.	Art and media are deeply connected, as both aim to tell stories that move people. A truly good film or book must be a success , not only in terms of profit but also in emotional impact. Some series become famous because they have a breathhtaking scene or a dramatic life-or-death plot that keeps the audience intrigued. Others are loved for the plot full of twists and turns or for how well they manage to create an amusing story that captures the audience's imagination. Moreover , every viewer wants to get completely hooked , unable to stop watching. For instance , my favourite movie is Avengers, which combines science fiction and philosophy. It's a story full of heroism and self-discovery, and the film is set in different layers of dreams, where each moment is full of tension. It manages to keep people up-to-date and better informed about the human mind while still entertaining them. In addition, some films manage to keep viewers on the edge of their seats from start to finish, making them unforgettable experiences.
Step 3. Media Recluses in the Arts 3.1. What is a media recluse? What famous people avoided media attention and why? 3.2. Do you think celebrities have the right to a private life? Why/Why not?	Furthermore , not everyone in the arts enjoys publicity. A media recluse is someone who avoids the spotlight. Some artists choose to escape publicity because fame brings pressure and constant attention. Others prefer to have little contact with the outside world so they can focus on creativity. However , when such people finally appear in public , they often become household names because of their mystery. At the same time , true artists care more about integrity than popularity. They try to display integrity and to have high moral standards in their work. For example , many famous authors who once refused interviews later gained respect for their authenticity. In contrast , some celebrities use media to publicise a masterpiece , but this sometimes leads them to paint themselves into a corner , when their personal lives overshadow their art. As a result , artists must find balance between fame and privacy.

Step 4. CREATIVE THINKING Introduce your own extra idea(s) on trends that hasn't/haven't been mentioned before. Justify your choice.	Interestingly enough, the media world today is more diverse than ever before. Digital technology allows filmmakers and musicians to convey the story accurately, reaching millions instantly. New streaming platforms make it easier to establish reputation and to sell the movie rights without depending on traditional studios. For example, independent creators can now share their ideas freely and travel far and wide to collaborate internationally. What is more, good journalism should aim to bring home to people the importance of honesty and creativity. In a world of fake news, the ability to be aware of something and think critically is essential. A famous proverb reminds us that A picture is worth a thousand words, and indeed, powerful images can influence society more than speeches. Therefore, it is important to use art and media responsibly, inspiring people rather than manipulating them.
Step 5. Conclusion Summarise the ideas of steps 2,3,4.	All in all, art and media shape our world in ways we often take for granted. They can inspire, teach, and entertain while raising important social questions. In conclusion, both creators and audiences must remember that the true purpose of art is to connect people. Great works keep us on the edge of our seats, but even more importantly, they make us think. By respecting integrity, valuing creativity, and staying open to innovation, we can make sure the arts and media continue to be a success and lead humanity forward.
